Kirra trust is gone

KIRRA Point lobbyists have lost trust in the State Government as promises to bring back the beach's famous point break are repeatedly stalled and manipulated. Stage two of the $1.5 million Kirra restoration works has been 'put on hold' for the Government to assess the best way to proceed. Climate Change and Sustainability Minister Kate Jones said sand removal during stage one and erosion during storms in May had helped works, meaning stage two had to be reassessed. Kirra Point Inc spokesman Wayne Dean said the government should not be wasting time with studies or assessments.
